THE NORTH IDAHO FILM FESTIVAL IS COMING BACK!

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Coeur d'Alene, ID – Following the tremendous success of its debut in 2024, the NoID Film Festival is back for its second year, promising an even bigger and bolder celebration of independent film. From September 25–27, 2025, cinephiles and filmmakers will gather at Regal Cinema Riverstone for three days of screenings, Q&As, and unforgettable experiences.

Last year's inaugural festival brought filmmakers from all over the U.S., a directors-only workshop, and a packed schedule of screenings and events that energized both the local community and visiting film lovers. Building on that momentum, the 2025 festival introduces exciting new features—including a 30th anniversary screening of Braveheart with special surprises, a streamlined all-access festival pass for just $75, and a fresh lineup of innovative films and exclusive programming.

A FESTIVAL LIKE NO OTHER

The NoID Film Festival, organized as a nonprofit, was founded with a mission to elevate emerging creative voices and minds in the film industry. With an increasing number of mainstream films recycling familiar storylines, NoID aims to provide a stage for filmmakers offering new, unique, and thought-provoking perspectives.

Matt Edwards, Executive Director of NoID Film Festival, shared his enthusiasm for this year's growth, saying, "Our first year showed just how much energy and appetite there is for independent film in North Idaho. This year, we're raising the bar with new content, bigger experiences, and a format that makes it easier than ever for audiences to immerse themselves in everything the festival has to offer."

This year's festival is made possible through the generous support of presenting sponsors 208 Companies and Redman & Company Insurance, whose commitment to creativity and community fuels the event's success. We're also proud to welcome Pilgrim's Market as a new supporting sponsor, joining the festival in celebrating originality and grassroots talent in independent cinema.

The festival offers the local community a rare opportunity to experience films outside the mainstream, thanks to our festival partner Regal Cinema Riverstone, who hosts this three-day celebration in the heart of Coeur d'Alene. In addition to screenings, attendees can expect Director and Producer Q&As, industry workshops, and networking events, including the lively afterparties that became a highlight of last year's festival.

The simplified all-access pass provides admission to every screening, Q&A, workshop, and afterparty for just $75, making it easier than ever for festivalgoers to enjoy the full experience. For those who prefer to attend select films, individual tickets remain available at $15-20 per screening.

ABOUT NoID FILM FESTIVAL

The NoID Film Festival is a nonprofit event that aims to highlight the hidden grassroots talent of independent filmmakers, both locally and nationally. Set against the stunning backdrop of North Idaho, the festival seeks to elevate fresh voices in film, bringing new and ideologically diverse perspectives to audiences hungry for originality and creativity in cinema.
